THE CREATOR CIRCLE

The Creator Circle emphasizes the importance of treating others with kindness, making decisions for the good of all, not being greedy or stingy, respecting all living things, and avoiding conflict. It also stresses the importance of respecting elders, parents, and their customs, religions, and the natural world. The circle also highlights the role of women in the decision-making process, emphasizing respect for their role as the givers of life and the backbone of the family. Children are seen as a gift from the Creator and are not to be used or abused.

In addition to these values, the circle outlines the types of behavior that should be avoided, such as economic and emotional abuse, use of children, isolation, intimidation, and blaming. It promotes fairness, respect, trust, and support, as well as honesty and accountability in parenting.

The circle is based on models by Sacred Circle and DAIP.
